Thursday night that he did not kiss little Frances good-night before going out, as he always did if he did not intend to return before she went to bed.

When Mrs. Hall senior became ill a couple of years ago, Mrs. Vorhees telegraphed Mrs. Frances Hall at once and the latter was with Mrs. Hall senior at the time of her death, along with Mrs. Vorhees and Mrs. Bonner.

Mrs. Bonner and Mrs. Vorhees want to believe in the integrity of Mr. Hall. They are nonplussed by the diary and letters and are not convinced that either are genuine. They have absolute faith in Mrs. Hall, Willy and the other defendants. They do not wish to be present throughout the trial, if this can be avoided, but are entirely willing to take the stand to testify to the above and anything else within their knowledge. They both make an excellent appearance and will, I think, be good witnesses.
